Old Goa & Spice Plantation Tours / Caravan Tour

A trip to any Goan spice plantation is very refreshing and rejuvenating to all the senses. One can learn how local spices and herbs are grown organically. Some of the spice plantations that form part of the itinerary John organizes are Rustic Plantation, Savoi Plantation, Tropical Spice Plantation, Sahakari Spice Plantation, Pascoal Spice Farms and Abyss Spice Farms. You can camp out all night or head back to your hotel in Goa in the evening.

At the entrance of most spice farms, you will be given a warm Goan Traditional welcome and offered a refreshing herbal drink. Once inside you can at once inhale the fragrances of fresh spices such as nutmeg, cardamom, cinnamon, black and white pepper, coriander, chilies, and betel nut. Interspersed in this plantation are also fruit trees and vegetables such as cashew, custard apple, banana, citrus fruits and pineapples. You also get to see the art of how Betel Nut pluckers climb these trees, over a hundred feet above the ground and then swaying from tree to tree.

Afternoon lunch is served mostly in an open air environment on hygienic & green banana leaves which are biodegradable. The food is generally fish curry and rice

We encourage tourists to get back to nature and hence organize spice plantation trips located in the hinterlands of Goa.
